The Beekeeper's Daughter

1. Every June, when the lavender began to bloom along the lower field, Ines helped her mother lift the heavy hive frames, checking each one for the telltale glisten of new honey.
2. Her mother moved among the bees without gloves, humming under her breath, and claimed the bees could sense a nervous hand from a steady one. Ines was not sure she believed this, but she had never been stung while humming too.
3. This year, though, one hive had fallen silent. No bees streamed from its entrance, and the frames inside were empty of the restless, golden motion Ines had grown up with.
4. Her mother knelt beside the quiet hive for a long time, turning a single dead bee over in her palm as though it might explain itself if she waited long enough.
5. "A hive can die of many things," she said eventually, "but mostly it dies of being alone. Bees only thrive when there are enough of them to keep each other warm."
6. Ines thought about that sentence for the rest of the summer, long after the other hives had filled with honey again, wondering how many things beyond beekeeping might be true in the same way.

ANSWER KEY & MARK SCHEME

Q	ID	Answer	Mark scheme
1	eh31	Lift the heavy hive frames and check each for new honey	The passage states she helped 'lift the heavy hive frames, checking each one for the telltale glisten of new honey'.
2	eh32	Being alone, without enough bees to keep each other warm	The mother says a hive 'dies of being alone... Bees only thrive when there are enough of them to keep each other warm.'
3	eh33	She is quietly testing her mother's belief through her own experience	Award for recognising Ines neither fully believes nor dismisses the claim, but notices supporting evidence.
4	eh34	revealing	'Telltale' describes a sign that reveals or gives away information, matching 'revealing'.
5	eh35	She is searching for understanding, taking the loss seriously	Award for connecting the lingering, careful gesture to a search for meaning rather than routine inspection.
6	eh36	She spoke after a pause or hesitation	'Eventually' signals a delay before she finally speaks, following her long silent kneeling.
7	eh37	adjectives	All four words describe nouns, so they are adjectives.
8	eh38	The idea that things need company or togetherness to thrive	Award for linking 'the same way' back to the hive-dying-of-loneliness idea in the previous paragraph.
9	eh39	To show the idea has stayed with Ines beyond the immediate situation	Award for recognising that the idea outlasting the practical situation suggests a lasting, not passing, impression.
10	eh40	The bees respond to the person's calmness, implying trust must be earned through steady behaviour	Award for connecting the bees' sensitivity to a wider idea about earning trust through steadiness.
11	esp25	The buisness had struggled	'Buisness' should be 'business'.
12	esp26	takes place in Febuary	'Febuary' should be 'February' (the first 'r' is often dropped in speech and writing).
13	esp27	No mistake	Every word is spelled correctly, so N is the answer.
14	esp28	She was greatful	'Greatful' should be 'grateful' — it comes from 'grate', not 'great'.
15	esp29	began to dissapear	'Dissapear' should be 'disappear' (single s, double p).
16	esp30	No mistake	Every word is spelled correctly, so N is the answer.
17	esp31	immediatly after	'Immediatly' should be 'immediately' (an 'e' is missing before the -ly suffix).
18	esp32	truly beautifull	'Beautifull' should be 'beautiful' (single l at the end).
19	epu25	The gardeners tools	'Gardeners' needs an apostrophe to show possession: 'gardener's tools'.
20	epu26	three things sandwiches	A colon is needed before the list: 'three things: sandwiches, fruit and lemonade'.
21	epu27	the shopkeeper	A comma is needed after 'shopkeeper' to separate it from the resumed speech.
22	epu28	No mistake	The parenthetical clause is correctly closed with commas on both sides, so N is the answer.
23	epu29	Isnt it time	'Isnt' needs an apostrophe: 'Isn't'.
24	epu30	rehearsed for weeks finally	A second comma is needed after 'weeks' to close the parenthetical clause: '...weeks, finally performed...'.
25	epu31	The storm passed quickly;	A comma, not a semicolon, is needed before the trailing '-ing' clause: 'quickly, leaving the streets...'.
26	epu32	No mistake	The sentence contains no punctuation errors, so N is the answer.
27	ecl25	consistent	'Consistent' fits an account that convinces a jury of honesty, unlike the negative alternatives.
28	ecl26	will have created	Future perfect 'will have created' is needed for an action completed by a specified future point.
29	ecl27	Even though	'Even though' signals the contrast between confusing instructions and correct assembly.
30	ecl28	curt	'Curt' fits a short, unfriendly tone consistent with a meeting going badly.
31	ecl29	where	'Where' is the correct relative adverb for a place, matching 'the village'.

32	ec130	was restored	The passive 'was restored' fits since the manuscript is the object of the action, not the doer.
33	ec131	gradually	'Gradually' fits a process described as happening 'over the following months'.
34	ec132	would have been	Third conditional structure requires 'would have been' with the earlier 'if the rain had continued'.
